Taste: Lot 245 offers tremendous pepper and cherry-berry fruit dovetailed with incense, fresh flowers, and forest floor in a dense, chewy mouth feel. A much more traditionally styled Zin that delivers opulence and elegance throughout the palate with a long finish.

Cameron Confidential: North Coast brands are being bought, sold, and traded lately as vintners struggle to stay ahead of their obligations. The wines we sourced from this deal make up a considerable part of the repositioning of a particular ultra-premium Zinfandel and Zin-based blend producer that was sold a year or so ago. As part of the deal one of the brands was discontinued altogether and we purchased all of those wines and others from the flagship brand as they sought to maintain their current price point by reducing inventory. This is a classic deal for Cameron Hughes Wine but it's also a one-time deal as they severely cut back the 2010 contracts, so grab what you can of these incredible values.
