CAMERON HUGHES
Lot 167 Petite Sirah
2007, Napa Valley

Taste: Deep, inky purple hue... Huge aromas jump from the glass right away. The nose exhibits blueberry compote, cassis and nuances of sweet blackberries and currants. On the palate, bold fruit braces a huge structure as its full body prevails. The nice mid-palate coupled with the refined integrated tannins present a beautifully rounded wine displaying exceptional elegance especially for the Petite Sirah varietal. Decant before drinking or cellar up to 15 years.

Cameron Confidential: Within the same series of more prestigious wines that we have been producing, this wine comes from what's known as one of the most distinguished Petite Sirah producers in Napa Valley. This wine came to us from a small production giving us only 350 cases. With Parker not scoring this wine under 90 points in many years, this normally 60 dollar bottle is hands-down the best Petite Sirah that we have ever gotten our hands on. Not only does this come from one of the most renowned producers in Napa, but in the fabulous 2007 vintage. Get this wine now folks, I wouldn't expect it to be around for very long.
